

FROM THE DESK OF CHUCK NORRIS

Why I Trust in God, Guns and Gold

With so much uncertainty in our country today, many Americans are fearful, and understandably so. They're worried about lockdowns, higher taxes, a weak economy, and rising inflation. So many Americans are already living paycheck to paycheck, and they're concerned about the future.

With the extensive economic trifecta and rising unemployment, did quarantines and lockdowns help or hurt the livelihoods of millions of Americans? Is there an end in sight? Many of us look to the recent past to try to see hope for the future.

The past four years saw amazing growth in the stock markets, fattening the 401(k) and retirement accounts of millions of Americans. Those investors are now afraid that their retirement savings will suffer, and many are despondent that changes in National and local government could have hurt their ability to keep their life's savings secure.

But as the psalmist says,

Put not your trust in princes, in a son of man, in whom there is no salvation.

(Ps. 146:3)

The Bible reminds us that there's a higher power in whom we are to place our trust. And that's why I place my trust in God, guns, and gold.

My wife, Gena, and I are devoted Christians, but we respect all people of good faith regardless of their religion. And all religions have at their core the understanding that our life on earth isn't the end all and be all of our existence. No matter what we may suffer in this life, we have to place our trust in God that he will provide for us.

That doesn't mean we don't have to act responsibly for ourselves, however. There's the old joke about the man living in a flood zone who rejects help from a jeep, a boat, and a helicopter because he places all his trust and faith in God. He gets overwhelmed by the floodwaters, and when he reaches heaven he asks God why He didn't help him. God replies, "I sent you a jeep, a boat, and a helicopter, what more could I have done for you?"

We need to protect what God has been good enough to give us and to protect the families whom he has entrusted to our care. That's why guns are so important not just to me, but to millions of Americans. It's our responsibility to protect ourselves and our families against those who would rob or harm us. And as the history of the 20th century reminds us, when civilian ownership is sharply restricted or eliminated, the results can be catastrophic.

WILL WE RETURN TO NORMAL, OR ARE WE SEEING THE NEW NORMAL?

To say that 2020 was a wild ride is an understatement. Millions of Americans are tired of having to live in fear of COVID, they're tired of the constant threat of lockdowns and they're ready to return to normal. But with an economy that crashed over 30% in the second quarter of 2020 and that still hasn't returned to pre-COVID output levels, is it even possible to return to normal? Or are we seeing a new normal, an economy that will be increasingly dependent on the government to continue functioning? In many ways the economy never returned to normal after the 2008 crisis. With the Federal Reserve's massive amounts of quantitative easing and bloated balance sheet, there was a lot of talk about "normalizing" the Fed's balance sheet, but not a lot of action. And once things started looking rough for the economy, all those normalization plans went out the window.

With COVID upon us now and no end in sight, it's likely that we won't see a return to a normal economy anytime soon. If more than a decade after the 2008 crisis we hadn't returned to normal, don't be surprised to see yet another decade of abnormal economic policy.

Millions of investors will undoubtedly continue to act as they always have, assuming that this crisis too shall pass, that economic growth will resume its course, and that the economy and stock markets will continue to grow as they always have. But that may not be the case.

If the new normal means permanently higher budget deficits, more bailouts, and a continued devaluation of the dollar, it may call for a completely different way of investing than most people expect. That's why I turned to gold and silver.

I bought my first gold coin more than forty years ago. Over time, I accumulated physical gold and silver - enough that I needed help from family and friends to dig it up from my backyard when I moved. Looking back, times were uncertain just as they are today. Higher taxes, increasing National debt, higher inflation - well, our dollar doesn't go as far as it used to.

With every indication that the US economy is entering a new normal of higher government spending and an increasingly devalued dollar, will you be one of the investors to prepare against the negative effects of that new normal by investing in gold or silver, or will you be among those putting off adjusting your investment strategy until you start to see the worst effects of the new normal? Waiting too long could cost you dearly, and endanger your longstanding retirement plans.

Don't let your retirement fall victim to the new normal. Take the time to educate yourself on how gold and silver can help protect your family's financial freedom.

YOUR FINANCIAL FREEDOM MAY BE IN DANGER

Time to protect your hard-earned savings now!

We need to protect the financial and material resources that we have accumulated to benefit ourselves and our families. And with financial assets such as stocks and bonds subject to the whims of Wall Street and at risk of collapse at a moment's notice, Gena and I don't believe there is a better asset to protect against that possibility than gold and silver.

Gold has served as a source of wealth for thousands of years. The Bible mentions gold hundreds of times, and gold is the biblical gold standard for wealth and riches. Gena and I have been long-time investors in gold, and there's no other asset I trust more to protect my savings than gold.

When you decide to invest in gold, it's important to work with someone you trust. You've saved and invested for years, or even decades, and you shouldn't make that decision lightly.

After researching a number of companies, we felt Goldco sets the standard for helping all Americans protect and grow their money.

Goldco's specialists can help you roll over or transfer assets from a 401(k), IRA, TSP, or pension account into a gold IRA. They work with mints around the world to source gold coins and bars and ensure that the gold you're buying is guaranteed to be 100% authentic. And they can even help you take a distribution in cash or gold.

One fact that you might also find useful is that once you turn 72 and are obligated to take the required minimum distributions (RMDs), you can earmark a portion of those RMDs as charitable contributions. Not only can that help you when it comes to tax time, but it can also help those in need.

I've made my fair share of mistakes over the course of my life, but I've sought to learn from them and better myself. My mission in life now is to help others better themselves and keep from making those same mistakes. That's why Gena and I founded KICKSTART KIDS, a charity dedicated to teaching children about character through the study of karate. If you need to make RMDs this year, please consider a qualified charitable contribution to KICKSTART KIDS at kickstartkids.org.

At the end of the day, building up wealth through investing in gold isn't about acquiring money for its own sake. It's about building up the means to provide for ourselves and our families, to give them the opportunity to become the best people they can be.

It's too easy in our world today to get caught up in following politics, to worry about material consumption, or to try to be popular and well-liked. But as Jesus said, "Therefore do not be anxious, saying, 'What shall we eat?' or 'What shall we drink?' or 'What shall we wear?'" For the Gentiles seek after all these things, and your heavenly Father knows that you need them all. But seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things will be added to you." (Matthew 6:31-33)

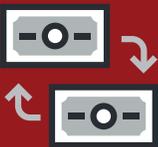

What's important is building up our character, building strong relationships with God and others, and building strong families. I'm proud to become part of the Goldco family and I hope you'll join me in investing in your family's financial future with gold and silver.
